

Hey everybody, I'm very much looking forward to working with you all again through Nashville Acoustic Camps! I had a great time last January and am looking forward to another round.

In each of these 4 weeks we will study a different OPEN key (G, C, D and A), and use standard fiddle tunes as a template for our discussions. We will touch on the melody of each tune and send you off with a solid version of each but the majority of time spent during the classes will be showing you how to make creative variations to the tunes and also how to play great rhythm over them. I believe that each key/position has its strengths and unique traits that you can tap into to make the song come alive the most in that key, for both the lead and rhythm parts. I'll help you get inside of my head when I'm improvising and teach you some of my favorite licks in each of these keys. Handout pdfs will be given for both the basic songs and licks that I teach.

While you don't need any prerequisite course etc. to take this class with me I'd encourage purchasing and going over last year's class with Nashville Acoustic Camps as it would contain much about right hand technique, rhythm and chord variations, functional harmony and triads- all things that will be alluded to in this upcoming course. Here's a link to purchase the previous series:

This series will be targeted to an intermediate audience overall but this class will offer plenty of help to both the beginner and advanced players too.

Looking forward to it!
